A resident of the Sarangpur village in the Adampur tehsil of Hisar district, Vikas Jyani had always dreamt of becoming a pilot.

What is the best gift someone can give to their hometown after they have climbed the ladder of success or achieved what they set out to do? Distribute sweets door-to-door? Host a party for their friends and neighbors across the village?

Well, what this newly-commissioned pilot from Haryana did for the elderly folks from his hometown will not just touch your heart but also make you respect the young man for his magnanimous gesture.

A resident of the Sarangpur village in the Adampur tehsil of Hisar district, Vikas Jyani had always dreamt of becoming a pilot. In addition to this, as he inched closer to his dream, he nursed a desire to take all the elders of his village on a flight at his own expense!

Kudos to the young pilot for his extremely kind gesture. We are sure that it will inspire many youngsters, who moved to bigger cities for higher studies and job opportunities, to give back to their hometowns as well.
